PORTO QUIVIR®

PROFESSIONAL REFERENCE

To whom it may concern,

Marian López Solís collaborated with Grupo Portillo for approximately one year, supporting us on different projects related to analysis, marketing strategy and digital experience.

During this period, she worked on several strategic assignments, including the development of a marketing plan, an analysis and audit of our website, and the design of a commercial and relationship-building initiative aimed at strengthening the company's positioning and creating new business opportunities.

Throughout our collaboration, Marian showed a strong ability to analyse situations before proposing solutions. She is particularly good at organising information, identifying areas for improvement and turning her findings into clear and structured proposals.

We also valued her initiative and curiosity. She made an effort to understand the wider context of the business rather than focusing only on the specific task she had been given, and she was proactive in suggesting new ideas and possible approaches when she identified opportunities.

Marian worked independently and approached her projects in a thoughtful and methodical way. When presented with a problem or objective, she was able to research the situation, structure the relevant information and present a reasoned proposal, while remaining open to feedback and discussion.

During her time working with us, she showed particular strengths in areas related to strategic analysis, customer experience, digital strategy, communication and process improvement.

Our experience working with Marian was positive, and we believe she has strong potential to continue developing professionally in roles involving strategic analysis and consulting.

Sincerely,

Portoquivir sl
